

Modern Languages (French, German & Spanish)

Head of Department: M Jackson (m.jackson@lsf.org)

Exam Board: AQA French (8652), German (8662), Spanish (8692)

We offer GCSE French, GCSE German and GCSE Spanish. Pupils are expected to study at least one modern foreign language, though several boys opt to study two. Furthermore, for dual linguists, there is the option of studying French on Thursday afternoons.

With ever increasing globalisation, the knowledge of a foreign language has never been more important; with Brexit and the challenges it brings, this reinforces the case even more so for English speakers. Some companies are now expecting knowledge in another language. Law and investment banking firms may offer higher salaries to those with MFL skills, and certain companies (BMW, Siemens) require conversational ability as a requisite for employment. Some medical schools in England require pupils to do a module in an MFL in their first year alongside the medicine course. But it is not just for better job prospects that taking a language at GCSE is worthwhile. The study of another culture and language is an enriching experience. A step up from Year 9, pupils study and get their teeth into all of the following themes on which the exams are based:

Theme 1: Identity and culture

Theme 2: Local, national, international and global areas of interest

Theme 3: Current and future study and employment

In Years 10 and 11, pupils gain greater access to often individual lessons with our dedicated foreign language assistants in French, German and Spanish, giving access to a native speaker both to improve pronunciation and offer insights into another culture.

To dispel the myth that modern languages are difficult, essay heavy and require a lot of revision, results at the School at GCSE for all 3 MFLs are good, and the MFL course is very much a skills based one, which builds on work done at Key Stage 3 and is not open to cramming facts like in other subjects, which can make it a good balance with content heavy subjects to share workload over the two years.
